Mack First to Build Brainy Team With Youngsters.

CHICAGO, January 6.-It was only a comparatively short space of time ago when the college boy was laughed at by mouth today. Connie Mack is largely responsible for the shift. He firmly, believes in the collegian. Ever since he took charge of the Athletics he has held tight to this belief. And his heretofore espised campus boys have won many despised campus boys have won many league and world's pennants for him.

Run lightly over the list—Plank, Coombs, Wykoff, Barry, Collins—four of them at least superaverage players. Not one of them ever played under any other manager than Connie Mack. He took them straight from the collegiate walls. 'He gave them the chance to make good. We venture to affirm not a single fan will say they haven't come across with the goods.

Plank alone has given Mack more than ordinary interest on his good will. Eddle has been a long time in the game and perhaps some readers will be surprised to learn he got his start with Mack. He was still thinking of the Gettysburg College songs when Connie signed him up. Eddle Collins is called the best sectond sacker in the country. Many consider Barry the peer of all shortstops. Yet it is only a short while ago they used to refer to him as "Bonehadd Barry." Pitcher Coombs, a collegian, is the champion world's series pitcher of them all when it comes to victories. Long ago Mack came to the opinion that what was needed to win pennants year after year was brains, brains, brains. One or two experiments convinced him that college players passed the ordinary age of a pitcherpassed it years ago. He hasn't the stuff he once possessed on that old ball. But he has it in his noodle. The last two years have been among his most successful. Much of the time he didn't have anything but his glove and the headwork. In this he resembled Doc White, late of the Sox, another college man, by the way.

There isn't a pair in the country aground second base who think faster

White, late of the Sox, another college man, by the way.
There isn't a pair in the country around second base who think faster and more accurately than Collins and Barry. No pair is excluded in the running. Their work is sensational all the time, but they make such easy work of it that the average fan thinks it is easy. They make it easy because they have the brains and the ability to follow the dictates of said gray matter. (Some psychology, say we.) Mechanical Players Lose Out.

Many and many a great mechanical player is a flash in the pan and then drops into obscurity. He could go along while he had the strength and the fresh vigor of youth. But when that passed and he didn't have the brains to pull him along for a few more years he was through with a capital T.

through with a capital T.

Passing beyond the Athletics, look at the other old-time college men who have found brams even more valuable than brawn. There is Mathewson and there is Bender. Fred Tenney, late first-sacker of the Giants, played longer than the ordinary type because the brains trained at Brown University came in handy.

Frank Chance would be playing yet if so many pitchers hadn't beaned him. Ed Reulbach still is pitching in the majors. The list is a long one, and one which might do those who scoff at base ball and a college education a world of good to think over.

There's just time for one story. Steve Evans, now circling the world with the Giants, joined the latter team some years ago as a first-sacker. He bought a fine, new mitt and took it out to the park with him.

He practiced for a week with the resource of the Content of the cont

He practiced for a week with the recruits and then the veterans dropped in —Matty, Tenney and the rest. Evans sat on the bench the first time Tenney warmed up on first. Steve had his new glove on the ground between his feet.

Tenney made some marvelous stops, catches and throws. Evans took one swallow and then threw his glove clean over the fence, "I'm not a first baseman—I'm a fielder," he exclaimed. And he stuck it out.

As was expected, the gen-eral quality of rolling was below that which characterized the work of the pin knights at the time the holidays called a halt in the schedules, and it will be a week or more before the stars get back into their real stride. Parker of the Pension team rolled a set of 353, with games of 125, 102 and 126, but his team was able to win only one game. Bureau, which was pitted against Pension, piled up a game of 549 in the opener, Liekweg and Lord each getting a 125 count. The second was won by the Engravers with a 501 score but, notwithstanding Helmerichs'

Whitford Does Good Work.

Roy Whitford kept up his string of big games with The Evening Star team of the Commercial League, and it was due in the main to his stellar work that the newspaper quint was able to land two games from Welsbach. Whitland two games from Welsbach. Whitford had scores of 116, 119 and 114, a total of 349, which runs his average well over 102 for the season's work. Elseman's quint captured the first contest by a comfortabe margin, and The Star had the same advantage in the second. The third was hard fought all along, Welsbach leading nearly all the way. In the tenth frame Burhans spared and Wooden had a four box, which put the newspaper team in the lead, the game ending with Star a winner by five pins. "Pop" Halley of Welsbach had a 332 set.

Belmonts of the District League ran their victories for the season up to the professional players. They were jeer-ingly referred to as dudes, and the veteran rough stars would laughingly inquire if "so and so had heard from his mamma today."

The laugh is on the other side of the mouth today. Connie Mack is largely re-their victories for the season up to twenty-three by a three-game clean-up from the Garrisons, Capt. Michaud doing the best work for the G street outfit. He had games of 94, 120 and 112. Krauss, anchor man for Belmonts, was then 300 for his set.

Bankers Win Two.

dence of The Star.

ROCKVILLE, Md., January 6, 1914. On the ground of newly evidence, Judge Edward C. Peter, in the circuit court here, has granted a new trial to George H. Grennell of Bethesda, this county, who was convicted here several weeks ago on an indictment charging him with attempting to criminally assault Nellie Lowe, eight years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lowe of Bethesda, and sentenced by Judge Peter to five years in the penitentiary. The bail, which was today furnished by friends of Grennell, was fixed at $500. Grennell's attorneys, Thomas Dawson and Emory Bogley, express themselves as firmly of the belief that their client is innocent.

Recent Weddings.

E'i Leishear of Laytonsville, this county. and Miss Goldie Dwyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Dwyer of Howard county, were married Saturday in Providence Methodist Church, Howard county, the pastor, Rev. William H. Saunders, officiating. Following a trip south, they will take up their residence
